The Subscriber hath for SALE,

ABOUT 15,000 Acres of exceeding good LAND, lying on Santee, and Edisto-Rivers, and the Waters thereof, and between 50 and 100 Miles from Charles-Town, in Tracts of any Size, from 100 to 3000 Acres, several of which lie on both Sides of the said Rivers, have very large Fronts, and good Proportions of Swamp and high Land.

The Land, in general, is as good for Corn, Indico, Hemp, or Rice, as any in the Province.

One of the Tracts consists of about 2500 Acres, and is a most commodious Place for a Saw-Mill to work three Saws, having a good Creek running through it, upon which a Mill may very conveniently be built as near as is proper to the main Santee-River: Besides the Mill-Seat on said Tract, which abounds with good Pine and Cypress Timber contiguous, there is so much good River Swamp, as to render it a most complete Hemp or Indico Plantation.

Sundry other small Tracts on the said Rivers, as well as Inland Tracts of one, two, to 500 Acres, are very commodious for small Settlements.

All the Land is exceeding well watered, and the only Fault that can be found with any, is, that it is not convenient to any but fresh-Water Landings, which renders it rather fitter for the Culture of Hemp and Indico than Rice; and indeed most of the Swamp is rather of the Quality that suits the two former best.

The Owner of said Lands, among such a Variety, doth not doubt, but he shall be able to furnish any Person inclinable to purchase, in those Parts of the Province where they lie, at what they may think a reasonable Rate. JOHN MITCHELL.

Hæc studia adolescentiam alunt, senectutem oblectant, secundas res ornant, adversis perfugium ac solatium præbent, delectant domi, non impediunt foris: Pernoctant nobiscum, peregrinantur, rusticantur. CICERO.

MAN is a sociable creature, and naturally formed for commerce and conversation, and as his future conduct and behaviour in the world, depend chiefly, if not wholly, upon the first impressions made upon him in his youth, the principal care ought to be, that such habits be infused into him, in his tender years, as may contribute to the rendering him an useful and profitable member of society; for which, by the very conditions of his existence, he is made and designed.

The mind requires the assistance of some guide, to ripen it into reason and reflection; to point out the way to knowledge; to draw out to view, those latent excellencies and perfections, which for want of proper helps, cannot be brought forth: To execute this, and to conduct our dawning reason, is the work of EDUCATION.

As one of my neighbours (a man who has had the advantages of a good education) and I were lately conversing upon this subject, and pleasing ourselves with the prospect of a good SEMINARY in this province, a thing much wanted, and generally wished for, he expressed himself in the following words; which I wrote down, and beg leave here to offer to the public. "To be able "to read the English language with ease and accuracy, is certainly pre-requisite to every other study; and it is with pleasure we see daily improvements made in this particular. Men "of education have not been ashamed of late to take upon "them the direction of children in reading; which, but a few "years ago, was committed to people of very little knowledge. "This is a reformation, which, as it was very much wanted, "ought to be promoted and encouraged; although at the same "time, the purposes of it should by no means be extended beyond its real bounds. It is imagined by some, who have "reaped little benefit from three or four years attendance at a "grammar-school, that this method of teaching English, will "answer all the purposes intended by the study of the dead languages; but this opinion is ill-founded. The study of the "English language is not yet carried to a proper extent, and if "it was, it would still fall short of the purposes of a liberal "education: It would require a singular strength of genius to "write even correctly in the English language, unless a foundation in the Greek and Latin languages had been previously "laid: The arts and sciences, by these means, are laid open to "us; the most ingenious of all ages become our companions and "acquaintance, whom we may upon all occasions consult. "There is no period of life so apt for proper impressions, as the "years allotted for the grammar-school, and no lessons furnish "more excellent examples of correct writing, and regular living, than what are contained in the classics, if they are properly attended to, and judiciously improved: It is here, where "youth are furnished with the first opportunity of passing a proper judgment on what they read, with regard to language, "thoughts, reflections, principles, and facts; without which, "the knowledge of words would be very insignificant: It is "here, where the taste for writing and living may be in some "measure formed; the judgment rectified; the first principles "of honour and equity instilled; the love of virtue, and abhorrence of vice, excited in the mind: But we must not stop here. "The study of rhetoric and composition ought by no means to "be neglected: This will give youth an opportunity of reducing "to practice, what formerly they had been only taught to relish; it will teach them to range their thoughts, arguments, "and proofs, in proper order, and to cloath them in that dress, "which circumstances render most natural: By this means, "they will not only be able to read the works of the best authors, with taste and propriety, but be taught to observe the "elegance, justness, force, and delicacy, of the turns and expressions; and still more, the truth and solidity of the thoughts: "At the same time, they will be led by degrees to speak and "write with freedom and elegance; which, in any other way, "will be found difficult to attain. But to speak or write well, "however necessary it may be, is not the only object of instruction: It will be of very little consequence to have the understanding improved, if the heart be totally neglected.

"Man was made by nature for society, and if he is not qualified, "or not disposed, to act his part well, like a bad performer in a "concert of music, will destroy the harmony, and render the "whole disagreeable: Therefore, to tune his mind to virtue and "morality; to moderate his passions, and to subject all his actions to the test of reason, he must have recourse to philosophy.

"The principles of law and government ought likewise to "constitute part of the plan of education; by which we are "taught to whom obedience is due, for what it is paid, and in "what degree it may be justly required. They ought to be introduced to geometry, algebra, and other branches of the "mathematics; which of all other studies, contribute most to "invigorate the mind; to free it from prejudice, credulity, and "superstition; and to accustom it to attention, and to close and "demonstrative reasoning. A proper course of reading at this "period, might be much improved by the conversation of a good "master."

When the education of youth is thus conducted from their earliest years, in a manner calculated to engage their minds in the love of useful knowledge; to improve their understanding; to form their taste, and ripen their judgment; their knowledge will be so particular, and their morals so secured, that they will be proof against the arts of the deceitful; the snares of the disingenuous; and the temptations of the wicked.

St. Bartholomew's, Dec. 20, 1769. A CAROLINIAN.

Resolutions of the North-Carolina assembly, which occasioned their dissolution.

On Thursday the 2d of November, the house of assembly came to the following resolutions.

RESOLVED, Nemine Contradicente, That the sole right of imposing taxes on the inhabitants of this his Majesty's colony of North-Carolina, is now, and ever hath been, legally and constitutionally, vested in the house of assembly, lawfully convened, according to the ancient and established practice, with the consent of the council, and his Majesty the King of Great-Britain, or his governor for the time being.

Resolved, nem. con. That it is the undoubted privilege of the inhabitants of this colony, to petition their Sovereign for redress of grievances; and that it is lawful and expedient to procure the concurrence of his Majesty's other colonies, in dutiful addresses, praying the royal interposition in favour of America.

Resolved, nem. con. That all trials for treason, misprision treason, or for any felony or crime whatsoever, committed and done in this his Majesty's said colony, by any person or persons residing therein, ought of right to be had and conducted in and before his Majesty's courts holden within the said colony, according to the fixt and known course of proceeding; and that the seizing any person or persons residing in this colony, suspected of any crime whatsoever committed therein, and sending such person or persons to places beyond the sea to be tried, is highly derogatory to the rights of British subjects; as thereby the inestimable privilege of being tried by a jury from the vicinage, as well as the liberty of summoning and producing witnesses on such trial, will be taken away from the party accused.

Resolved, nem. con. That an humble, dutiful and loyal address be presented to his Majesty, to assure him of our inviolable attachment to his sacred person and government, and to beseech his royal interposition, as the father of all his people, however remote from the seat of his empire, to quiet the minds of his loyal subjects of this colony, and to avert from them those dangers and miseries which will ensue from the seizing and carrying beyond sea, any person residing in America suspected of any crime whatsoever, to be tried in any other manner than by the ancient and long established course of proceeding.

On Saturday the 4th of November, his Excellency the Governor sent a message to the house, desiring their attendance on him in the council chamber: The house accordingly waited on his Excellency, when he was pleased to address them as follows;

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly,

UPON looking over the votes of your house, I find some resolves upon your journals; resolves, that, after the assurances I had given you in my speech, have sapped the foundations of confidence and gratitude; have torn up, by the roots, every sanguine hope I entertained, to render this province further service, if, in truth, I have rendered it any, and made it my indispensible duty to put an end to this session: I shall therefore require your attendance on Monday next, when you will present to me such bills as may be then prepared.

WILLIAM TRYON.

To his Excellency WILLIAM TRYON, Esquire, Captain General, Governor, &c.

SIR,

THE assurances your Excellency gave this house, at the opening of this session, of the repeal of those acts, so contrary to the interest both of Great-Britain and America, had the repeal of them, happily for us, been in your power, would have been a certainty upon which the house could not but have relied, without, indeed, sapping the foundations of confidence and gratitude, and justly forfeiting all title to your Excellency's further favours and services; but as those assurances were in consequence of expectations founded on the intention of ministers to recommend such a repeal to parliament, who might or might not have been in place at the next meeting thereof, we could not but think it a duty we indispensibly owed to our constituents, to express our disapprobation of acts and measures, in our apprehension, grievous and unconstitutional. To this motive alone we beg of you, Sir, to impute those resolves, and not to a loss of confidence in your Excellency, or for want of a very grateful remembrance of those signal services you have rendered this province; and we, with pleasure, take this public opportunity of declaring to the world, the benefits this province has received from your Excellency's administration, have excited in our bosoms the warmest sensations of gratitude, and must deservedly obtain you the blessings of posterity.

In the Assembly, Nov. 6, 1769. JOHN HARVEY, Speaker.

A great number of half-pay navy Lieutenants have, in conſequence of leave granted them by the Lords Commiſſioners of the Admiralty, applied to the Ruſſian ambaſſador for, and obtained appointments in the Ruſſian fleet.

We hear that a new chairman will be elected at the next meeting of the livery, at the Half-Moon tavern, whoſe character and abilities will add great weight and influence to all their proceedings, and not a little contribute to their utility and importance as a public body.

The generality of the merchants and manufacturers of Ireland, have no objection to an union of that kingdom with Great-Britain, provided it was ſecured to them upon the ſame terms now enjoyed by North-Britain, but the gentlemen of landed property are totally averſe to it.

Extract of a letter from Dublin.

"Our Lord Mayor having given a general invitation to moſt of the nobility and gentry of this city, on the 3d of this month, moſt of them dined with his Lordſhip at the Tholſel, among the reſt a certain great perſonage, who ſoon after dinner entered into converſation with our celebrated patriot, Dr. Lucas, who, it is ſaid, has written ſeveral very ſevere eſſays, in the public papers, againſt him.—The above great man, at length, aſked the Doctor, if he knew who was the author of ſome of thoſe pieces? To which the Doctor replied, he was ſure his Lordſhip could not aſk the queſtion in earneſt; but the latter aſſuring him he did, the Doctor obſerved, it was a moſt unbecoming and impertinent queſtion, which occaſioned a retort from his Lordſhip, that provoked the Doctor to tell him, nothing but his preſent exalted ſtation protected him from treatment he deſerved; but that he might be aſſured, as ſoon as he was out of his public character, he would be called upon to give ſatisfaction. This affair has made a great noiſe here; and as my Lord is known to be a man of courage, very diſagreeable conſequences are apprehended."

OCTOBER 17.

Laſt Thurſday evening Mr. Trevanion, and ſome gentlemen ſupporters of the bill of rights, came to Dover. They were met ſome diſtance from the town by ſeveral hundred independent freemen, and a prodigious concourſe of people, with drums beating, fifes playing, and colours flying, with lighted torches. The ardour of the people was ſo great, that it was with the utmoſt difficulty they were reſtrained from taking the horſes out of the carriage to draw him into town. He was conducted to the King's Head amidſt the ſhouts of the people, who are all to a man unconnected with places, ready to ſhed their blood in the defence of their liberties, and are above the ſordid offers of a bribe to ſell their votes: The poor corporation change their countenances to ſee the change of times.

The worthy and patriotic Dr. Muſgrave has publicly declared, in the words of the Right Hon. William Beckford, Eſq; that nothing ſhall ever induce him to accept of place or penſion; but that he thinks himſelf bound in duty to his country to make his charges good againſt Lord H——x at the bar of an auguſt aſſembly.

Lord Bute is not now going abroad as mentioned in a morning paper, but is arrived at his houſe in South Audley-ſtreet for the winter ſeaſon: However if the parliament don't meet till February, we will not ſay he will be preſent at the opening of the ſeſſion.

It is certain that large ſums of our gold coin has been lately drawn out of the bank of England, by ſome Scotch bankers, and placed in the banks of Scotland, with what view this has been done, it is very eaſy to gueſs.

The Fox has had cunning enough to remit to foreign banks, the remainder of his ill-gotten millions, of which he has for many years plundered this unhappy nation. The ſpirited and manly reſolutions of the brave livery of London made the traitor fly; and he is gone for ever to hide his miſcreant head, which ought to have been taken off on Tower-hill by a judicial condemnation.

The Thane goes next. In his laſt journey to the continent, he carried off immenſe ſums of Engliſh and French money he received for ſelling us. This is a well known fact, ſuch large remittances can never be concealed, though he took all the precautions that was poſſible to keep it a ſecret. If the people of England ſuffer this much longer, there will be little bullion left, and the nation will be obliged to keep up the appearance of public credit by paper money, and when the dreadful day happens our foreign enemies may overcome us, without ſtriking a blow.—Nothing can ſave this nation, but a ſpeedy d——n of the preſent p——t, bringing the wicked traitors to exemplary and condign puniſhment, and making them diſgorge the millions they have already plundered the nation of.

We hear that it has been propoſed by a certain gentleman of Middleſex, that, as the fox is unkennelled, if his M——y will permit, this gentleman, will let looſe his pack of hounds, in order to follow the ſcent to Dover, and from thence to France and Holland, to purſue Reynard, or even to the Alps, to bring him back to condign puniſhment for the devaſtation he has made among the geeſe, lambs, and lame ducks of this plundered country.

Laſt night a gentleman offered to lay a wager of 100 guineas, and depoſit the money at the bar of a coffee-houſe in the Strand, where the converſation happened, that Bareges would have more Engliſh noblemen inhabitants next year, than any town, or village in France, Germany, or Italy; but no gentleman would accept of the challenge, though the coffee-room was full.

Various are the reports about Sir W. D——r's voyage to South-Carolina, ſome ſay that he is ſo ſtung by Junius's letters that this report is induſtriouſly propagated to put a ſtop to further publications; others, that he is going to purchaſe a large tract of land in Eaſt-Florida, and that he intends conſulting with Denys Rolle, Eſq; member of parliament for Barnſtaple, who is now on the ſpot: And ſome ſay, his voyage is determined on to prevent an examination into the Manilla ranſom at the meeting of the parliament.

OCTOBER 18.

This morning Sir William Draper kiſſed the King's hand at St. James's, on being appointed governor of South-Carolina, in the room of the Right Hon. Lord Charles Greville Montagu.

It is ſaid that Sir William Draper will ſhortly ſet out for Briſtol, in order to embark for his new government, on board the Brice, Capt. Muir, which ſails in about three weeks; and that before that gentleman takes his departure, he will again preſent a memo-

…ſonage, in order that proper and effectual mea… …ken to obtain the payment of the Manilla ranſom; …ament, it is ſaid, will not meet till the 26th of …for the diſpatch of buſineſs.

…ong other things, the long diſputed affair reſpecting the …e to the title of an earldom, which now lies, by appeal, before a certain great houſe, will receive its final determination the enſuing winter.

It is ſaid that the Lord Chancellor has been conſulted on the ſubject of a late city election.

There is now much talk of ſome extraordinary negotiations relative to the diſpoſal of ſtate places, by a certain Polar-titled nobleman, becoming a ſubject of parliamentary enquiry.

We hear from Cork, that ſeveral French officers have lately made their appearance in that country, in order to enliſt men into his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty's ſervice.

OCTOBER 19.

The following paragraph appeared in the Hague gazette, of the 13th inſtant, under the article London:—"Dr. Muſgrave's letter and the Chevalier D'Eon's anſwer continue to give birth to many reflexions. The charge being very grave, many perſons are of opinion that the parliament will make profound enquiries into the ſubject. The Chevalier has declared, that he would give due anſwers to ſuch perſons as were lawfully authorized, but would pay no regard to anonymous letters."

We hear a meſſenger will be ſent, in a few days, on affairs of great moment, to his Majeſty's ambaſſador at Conſtantinople.

OCTOBER 20.

It is ſaid the Lord Chancellor will ſoon reſign, and that Sir John Eardley Wilmot will be appointed in his room; and it is further ſaid, that Sir Fletcher Norton will be made chief juſtice of the court of Common Pleas.

It is alſo reported, that the reſignation of a certain great officer, is occaſioned by his having given his opinion againſt the legality of the meaſure reſpecting Col. Luttrell and Mr. Wilkes.

We hear that the Earl of Bute intends letting out, on Monday next, for Bareges, for the benefit of the waters; and that his Lordſhip has given orders for his cloaths, &c. to be packed up, and his ſervants to be ready to attend him to that place.

It was yeſterday morning reported, that Sir Jeffrey Amherſt will be appointed governor of New-York, in the room of Sir Henry Moore, Bart. deceaſed.

A letter from Conſtantinople ſays, "At this place, and throughout many of the adjacent countries, the Muſſulmen have had a prophecy (for many years paſt) that in the years 1769 and 1770, they and their territories are to be entirely conquered by the unbelievers of Ruſſia. To this prophecy, it is thought, in a great meaſure, is owing the timidity, deſertion, and want of diſcipline in their late campaigns."

We hear that ſeveral merchants have applied for leave to fit out three privateers in the Ruſſian ſervice; but we do not as yet know the reſult of their application.

The Ruſſian fleet in the Humber, on the 10th inſtant, we are informed, conſiſted of 14 ſail of the line and 30 tranſports, on board of which, we hear, there are 6000 troops.

It is now ſaid, that the Ruſſian fleet is to winter at Minorca.

Letters from Conſtantinople, by this day's mails, mention, that the Ottomans were thrown into great conſternation by the appearance of a comet, which is always looked upon as a dreadful omen by thoſe ſuperſtitious people.

It is aſſerted, that the report of Sir William Draper having kiſſed hands, on being appointed to the government of South-Carolina, is without foundation, and various are the conjectures concerning his voyage to America; ſome ſay he will be preferred to the government of New-York; while others inſiſt that he is actually appointed Governor of South-Carolina: But the M——y intend to keep it a ſecret, for political reaſons, till Sir William arrives there, with his commiſſion in his pocket, which he will produce when he is landed on the continent.

OCTOBER 24.

Yeſterday ſome diſpatches were received from his Excellency John Moore, Eſq; his Majeſty's ambaſſador at Conſtantinople.

The Dutch, who are always provident for themſelves, are ſaid to be negociating ſome articles of importance with the Ruſſians, reſulting from their late victory over the Turks.

It is talked, that the houſhold of his Royal Highneſs the Prince of Wales will ſoon be eſtabliſhed.

It is ſaid, that a bill will be brought in next ſeſſion for laying a duty on the exportation of horſes.

OCTOBER 25.

Yeſterday a court of aldermen was held at Guildhall; but William Beckford, Eſq; was not preſent, to take upon him the office of Lord Mayor; he propoſes to be in town on Saturday, and next Tueſday intends to go to Guildhall. The court broke up after ſitting a ſhort time.

It is ſaid a court of common council will be held at Guildhall to-morrow, and that the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor intends to take the chair at eleven o'clock.

The above court is ſaid to be called at the deſire of ſome patriotic members of that body, to enquire into the conduct of ſome officers belonging to the city. Whilſt others ſay, that it is called principally to ſettle the buſineſs cuſtomary at this time of the year.

Yeſterday there was a very numerous meeting of the ſupporters of the bill of rights, at the London tavern, Biſhopſgate-ſtreet, J. Trevanion, Eſq; in the chair; when letters received, from divers parts of the country, were read, ſeveral ſubſcriptions were paid in, and ſome new members admitted.

There are now four American governments vacant. The miniſtry, therefore, have it in their power, by appointing men of probity, prudence, dignity, and ſpirit, to thoſe honourable offices, to give a favourable turn to the affairs of the colonies, no leſs deranged by miſmanagement abroad, than by the indeciſiveneſs of the councils at home.

A report prevails, that William Henry Lyttelton, Eſq; his Britannic Majeſty's ambaſſador to the court of Portugal, will ſoon be recalled, and appointed governor of New-York, in the room of the late Sir Henry Moore, Bart.

A ſtrong memorial is to be preſented in the courſe of this week, upon the buſineſs of the inſult, as it is called by our neighbours, offered lately in the Downs to the French flag. The French frigate, it is ſaid, is deſerted by the officers and crew, and left in Dover harbour as a capture.

A correſpondent obſerves, that if a bill ſhould be brought in, next ſeſſion of parliament, for limiting the duration of Engliſh parliaments to three years it would not fail of being carried. The anti-courtiers will be ſtrong for it, to oblige their conſtituents; and the following ſentence in the Lord Lieutenant's ſpeech to the Iriſh parliament, which is always ſuppoſed to convey the ſentiments of the council on this ſide the water, may ſerve to ſhew, that the courtiers cannot be againſt ſuch a meaſures.

"It is with particular ſatisfaction that, in obedience to his Majeſty's commands, I meet the firſt parliament, limited in duration, that ever aſſembled in this kingdom. I am confident that you are come together with the juſteſt ſentiments of duty and affection to our moſt excellent Sovereign, who has gratified the earneſt wiſhes of his faithful ſubjects of Ireland with that great improvement of their conſtitution."

We hear, that the eſtates of a certain gentleman, who has lately embarked for France, were all ſold a few days before his departure.

Yeſterday morning two more of the Ruſſian men of war arrived at Spithead, and more are daily expected.

The extract of the letter from Dublin, relating to an alteration between Dr. Lucas and a great perſonage, is corborated, in every particular, by ſeveral letters which have ſince been received from Ireland.

CHARLES-TOWN, DECEMBER 22.

IT is said, that there will be a General Meeting at LIBERTY-TREE, before, or on, the first Day of next Month, of the Inhabitants who signed the Resolutions of the 22d of July last; in order to enquire, of the Committee then appointed,

1st. How far the Use of Manufactures of this Province have been, and can be, encouraged and promoted; and, whether they are sold at the same Rates as heretofore?

2dly. Whether the Subscribers have literally and strictly adhered to the 2d Article; whereby they solemnly promised, immediately to countermand all Orders, except for certain enumerated Goods, and not to advance the Prices of such as they had on Hand, or might receive, in Consequence of former Orders executed before they could be countermanded?—Who are the Persons that have thus distinguished themselves?—And, if any, who has been so regardless of the Duty he owes to his King, his Country, and his Posterity, as to neglect, evade, or obstruct the only Measure which can produce to them Dignity, true Prosperity, Liberty, and Honour?

3dly. Whether any Negroes have been imported from the West-Indies, since the 1st Day of October last, and sold here; and by whom (if any) purchased?

4thly. Whether the 5th Article of the Resolutions has been properly attended to; which restricts Subscribers from purchasing any European and East-India Goods whatever, except Coals and Salt, from Masters of Vessels, transient Persons or Non-Subscribers, after the 1st of November last?—Whether there are any Members of this Community, so void of Feeling, so deaf to the Cries of their Country, and so unjust to the patriotic Merchants of this Province, as to have violated, this Part of their Agreement?

5thly. Whether it may not be necessary to adopt some new Measure, to prevent the Intentions of the Association being defeated, by transient Persons bringing in Cargoes of Goods, and offering them for Sale here? &c. &c. &c.

We are assured, that several Packages of British Cloths, imported in the Little-Carpenter, Captain Maitland, are actually re-shipped for London, in the London, Capt. Curling.

SUPPLEMENT to the South-Carolina Gazette, No. 1788.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1769.

By the particular Desire of several GENTLEMEN.

This is to acquaint the PUBLIC,

THAT Mr. HALL, MATE of the Ship CAROLINA-PACKET, Captain WILLIAM WHITE, Commander, having experienced the great Utility of the LUNAR METHOD OF OBSERVATION, for obtaining a Ship's true Place at Sea, purposes to teach the same on board the said Ship, lying at Col. Beale's Wharf, between the Hours of Six and Eight every Evening; where all that are desirous of being taught may apply, and where he may be spoke with any Time of the Day.

Such as choose it, may be waited on in the Evenings on board their respective Vessels, or at their Apartments on Shore.

He flatters himself, that his Experience in what he proposes to teach (known to several Gentlemen here) and the general Use and Advantage arising from such Knowledge, will sufficiently recommend it to such as must be materially concerned, especially as this valuable Acquisition may be made for the trivial Sum of ONE GUINEA.

Mr. HALL, for HALF a GUINEA, will also instruct any Person, who may not choose to learn the Lunar Method of Observation, that of finding the TRUE LATITUDE OF A SHIP, INDEPENDENT OF A MERIDIONAL OBSERVATION, and with equal Accuracy, by two simple Observations, any Time of the Day, between Nine o'Clock in the Morning and Three in the Afternoon, with other curious and useful spherical Pieces.
